HAPPY SEVENTEENTH BIRTHDAY, EMMA!

BOOK OF 17'S. →

Dear Emma,

Your fans and the team of Emma-Watson.net are delighted to wish you a very happy birthday. We hope this year will bring you everything you could ever wish for: success of course, but also lots of love and happiness, because that's what matters the most in life...

And living your life to the fullest certainly is the idea underlying this present! For your 17th birthday, we wanted to give you something that, just like the iPod we sent you last year, would hopefully be with you throughout this exciting new year in your life.

So we decided to create a "Book of 17's".

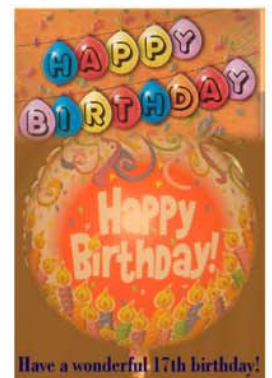

In it, you will not only find suggestions of 17 books to read, 17 songs to listen to, 17 movies to watch and 17 things to do before turning 18, but also a recollection of 17 major events that happened on April 15th and a series of 17 questions we'd love to ask you.

We also couldn't resist sharing some more personal thoughts on our part about 17 outfits that would look great on you for a premiere or 17 roles that we could picture you play... We hope that you won't mind, this is just intended for fun, just like the timeline in pictures of your life ever since you became an actress.

Last but definitely not least, because we know you love Art, we added 17 poems, 17 drawings and the birthday cards you can see on this page, all created and very kindly sent to us by your extremely talented fans.

With love and respect,
Your fans and the team of Emma-Watson.net.

Thanks to all the staff members who helped make this book a reality:
Mike, Katy, Shannon, Christel, Jasmine, Amy, Marissa, Camille, Carol, Melanie, Brittany & Julie-Ann

17 THINGS YOU SHOULD DO BEFORE TURNING 18!

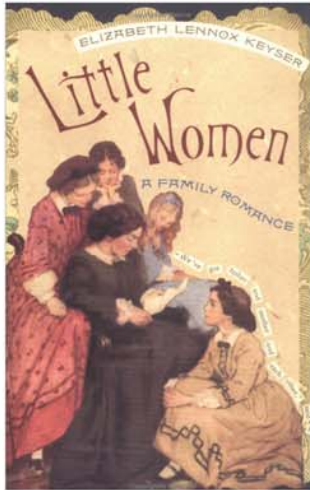

1. THE ONE THING YOU SHOULD DO BEFORE TURNING 18 IS GET A MOHAWK!!!!!! WHY?? WELL, IF YOU'RE OVER 18 WITH ONE, YOU'LL GET WAY MORE WEIRD LOOKS THAN WHEN YOU GET ONE BEFORE 18. BELIEVE ME, I SHOULD KNOW.
2. THERE 'S SO MANY THINGS BUT THE ONE I CAN THINK OF IS TRY TO DANCE ON ICE, I LOVE DANCING ON ICE, I TRIED TO DO IT AND IT 'S SO HARD! SO THAT 'S DEFINITELY ONE TO TRY!
3. WATCH THE SUNRISE...ON THE BEACH. AMAZING.
4. SING AND DANCE IN THE RAIN :]
5. SWIM WITH DOLPHINS.
6. LEARN HOW FILM IS DEVELOPED IN A DARK ROOM; DEVELOP YOUR OWN FILM. THIS WAS A REALLY COOL EXPIERIENCE FOR ME, AND I THINK IT WOULD BE FOR ANY PHOTOGRAPHY LOVER. YOU SHOULD DEFINATELY TRY IT. IT'S NOT THE CRAZIEST THING EVER BUT IT SURE IS WORTH IT.
7. I THINK TAKING A TRIP AROUND THE WORLD AND LEARNING ABOUT VARIOUS PEOPLE'S CULTURES WOULD BE FUN AND DIFFERENT. YOU COULD LEARN WHAT THEIR HOBBIES ARE, WHAT THEY EAT, ETC. WHEN YOU RETURN HOME, YOU COULD COMPARE THE CULTURES AND PERHAPS MAKE A LITTLE FILM ABOUT IT. THAT MAY BE KINDA HARD, BUT IT'S WORTH A TRY! AND DON'T FORGET SOUVENIRS, HAHA.
8. PAINTBALLING! YES INDEED.
9. WRITE YOURSELF A LETTER TALKING ABOUT HOW YOU FEEL, YOUR VALUES, AND YOUR GOALS. READ THAT LETTER ON YOUR 30TH BIRTHDAY (OR SOME LATER TIME) AND LOOK AT HOW YOU CHANGED AND MATURED.
10. JUMPING INTO A POOL WITH YOUR CLOTHES ON.
11. LEARN TO DRIVE A CAR. BY THE TIME YOU'RE 18, YOU AND YOUR FRIENDS WILL BE WANTING TO SPEND SO MUCH TIME TOGETHER!
12. GET INVOLVED IN SOME VOLUNTEER WORK! INTERNATIONAL WORKCAMPS ARE A GOOD WAY TO TAKE A HOLIDAY WITH A PURPOSE. THEY REALLY ARE LIFE-CHANGING EXPERIENCES, AS YOU'LL LEARN SO MUCH BY HELPING OTHERS. NO, YOU'RE NOT GOING TO CHANGE THE WORLD.....
13. WE ALL HAVE CLOSETS FULL OF CLOTHES WE'RE NOT GOING TO WEAR ANY-MORE SO TAKE AN HOUR OR TWO TO SORT YOUR CLOTHES OUT AND ASK YOUR FRIENDS IF THEY'RE INTERESTED, OR GIVE THEM TO CHARITY. YOU'LL HAVE MUCH MORE ROOM... FOR NEW CLOTHES! SO REWARD YOURSELF BY DOING SOME SHOPPING!
14. BUNGEE-JUMPING !
15. GET A JOB! WHEN YOU'RE 18, YOUR PARENTS ARE GOING TO ACCEPT LESS MONEY OUT OF THEIR POCKETS AND MORE FROM YOURS! SO GET READY WITH A JOB. ALSO, I'LL HELP YOU ENRICH YOUR RESUME AND IT WILL GIVE YOU EXPERIENCE IN THE JOB MARKET.
16. GO TO AN INDIE CONCERT!
17. MEET ONE OF YOUR FAVORITE HEROES/IDOLS!

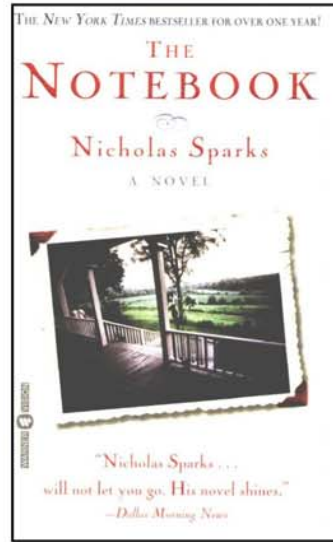

17 Books

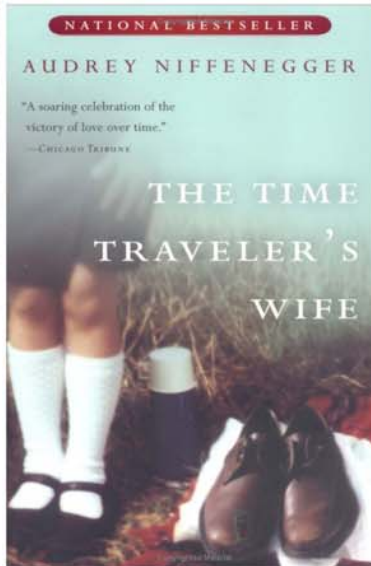

The Staff of EW.net picked out some books they enjoyed reading, and thought you would too!

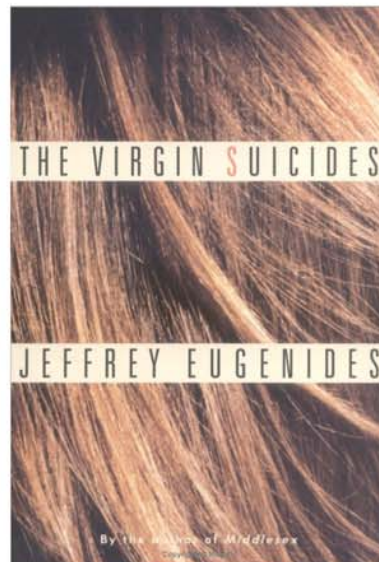

Little Women by Louisa M. Alcott. It's a heart warming story about four sisters in the 19th century. These sisters are going through some difficult times but their difference in personalities and the love from their mother keeps them together. It's a book full of wisdom and just a lovely story.

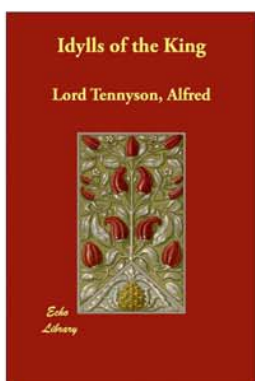

The Notebook by Nicholas Sparks. It's a very romantic story, about love that lasts through the years, no matter what. Believe me, it will keep you reading for hours. They made a movie out of it, it's actually quite good... but not as good as the novel!

The Time Travelers Wife by Audrey Niffenegger. It's a terrific love story with an odd twist. The novel centers on a man with a strange genetic disorder that causes him to involuntarily travel through time, and his wife, an artist, who has to cope with his frequent absences and dangerous experiences. It's such a brilliant story that it will definitely keep you interested!

The Virgin Suicides by Jeffrey Eugenides. The novel tells of the suicides of the Lisbon girls, five sisters living in Michigan during the 1970s. The suicides fascinate their community as their neighbours struggle to find an explanation for the acts. Depressing but brilliant, very different to the usual stories about teenage girls (the film starring Kathleen Turner and Kirsten Dunst is also great).

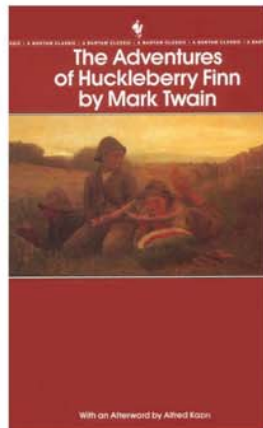

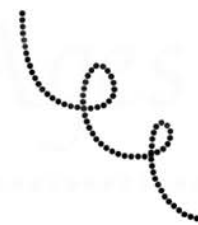

Idylls of the King by Alfred Lord Tennyson. This is the story of the legend of King Arthur as told by Tennyson. In a series of 12 narrative poems, or idylls, he tells us of the events in Arthur's life, from birth, the round table, Guinevere and Lancelot, the Holy Grail, and finally his passing. Written in verse, it's not as easy to read as regular prose, but I think the extra effort pays off in a deeper understanding of the story.

17 Books

The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn by Mark Twain. It really makes you step back and question what you've been taught is right and moral. It is eye-opening to see that an uneducated, outcasted boy without the influence of a corrupted and self-deluding society can be far more enlightened when it comes to matters of right and wrong. The story puts the issues and rhetoric of society's precious concept of "morality" into perspective and teaches readers to trust their own experiences and not some borrowed morality.

The Sun Also Rises, by Ernest Hemingway. Hemingway's famously plain declarative sentences linger in the mind like poetry. His cast of thirtysomething dissolute expatriates-- Brett and her drunken fiancé, Mike Campbell, the unhappy Princeton Jewish boxer Robert Cohn, the sardonic novelist Bill Gorton--are as familiar as the "cool crowd" we all once knew. No wonder this quintessential lost-generation novel has inspired several generations of imitators, in style as well as life-style.

A Great and Terrible Beauty by Libba Bray. Powerful novel about a 16-year-old girl, Gemma, and her quest to find herself after moving from India to London in the late 1800's. Seems typical. It's not. This novel and its predecessor are definitely worth a read.

Go Ask Alice (anonymous). An account of drug abuse that has been controversial on several levels, is considered a classic of American young adult literature. First published by Prentice Hall in 1971, the book purports to be the actual diary of an anonymous teenage girl who died of a drug overdose in the late 1960s. The book is presented as a cautionary tale against drug use. Marketed to other teen girls, it caused a sensation when published and remains in print 36 years later (as of 2007)

1984 by George Orwell. Published in 1949, the book tells the story of Winston Smith and his degradation by the totalitarian state in which he lives. The world described in 1984 parallels the Stalinist Soviet Union and Adolf Hitler's Nazi Germany... but the thing is, you can always draw parallels between the this world and our world, especially with everything the new technologies enable us to do. Remember: "Big brother is watching you."

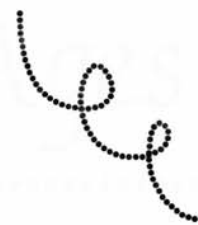

Where the Red Fern Grows by Wilson Rawls is more of a kids book, but you should still read it. It takes place in the Ozark Mountains. It's about a boy named Billy Coleman, who wants to buy two coonhounds. He can't afford them at first, so he saves up money over two years. Finally, his dream comes true...he buys the dogs. He names them Little Ann and Old Dan. They have many fun (and rough...) times together, and it's just a cute story...although the ending's a bit sad.

17 Books

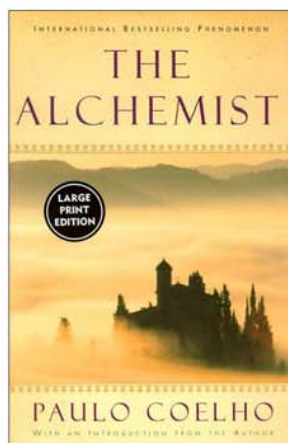

Lolita by Vladimir Nabokov. This book is famous because of all the controversy it caused. After all, it deals with a middle-age man becoming sexually obsessed with a 12-year-old girl! But I think that what is the most interesting about this book is that, at the time it described something that was perceived as shocking, whereas nowadays it's become common to see very sexualised young girls (just turn on the TV!) which is, in my opinion, quite a worrying trend. Reading "Lolita" might help people realise how dangerous this may be.

The Book Thief by Markus Zusak. This story is told through the view of Death, who gives a personalized account of a young girl's life from the time she was given up by her mother to the time when World War II disturbs her previously unaffected area of Germany. In my opinion, it can touch even the coldest person's heart. I think you'll love it. It's quite a hefty read though.

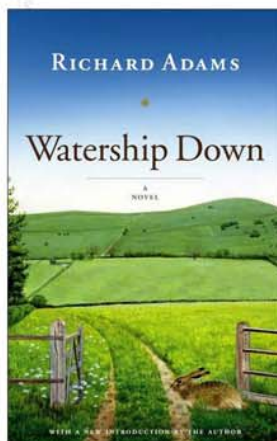

"Catcher in the Rye" by JD Salinger. A classic, about teenage angst. The novel covers a few important days in the life of the protagonist Holden Caulfield, a highly-critical and depressed sixteen-year-old who decides one night to run away from boarding school. You won't understand the character's feelings as well when you are 30, so maybe you should read the novel while you're still a teenager...

The Alchemist by Paulo Coelho (a Brazilian writer). An alchemist recounts a fable that he read along the way: Santiago, the protagonist, grew up with poor parents who struggled their whole lives to send him to seminary. But Santiago has a strong desire to travel the world... That book has a lot of dark things but it's quite an experience to read it!

Y De Repente, Un Angel (And Suddenly, An Angel) by Jaime Bayly. If you find this title in English, you'll enjoy this Peruvian story about friendship of a lazy writer who hires a 50-year-old illiterate woman as his maid, and finds himself intrigued with her story. The story is sweet, and quirky - the perfect plot for a nice quirky little independent film... if they ever make one.

Watership Down by Richard Adams. Impending disaster cause a small group of adventurers to flee their homeland in search of a new place to live. Along the way they face many dangers. Not so unusual a theme, except in this story the characters are rabbits. While the author claims it is just a childrens story, the complex rabbit mythology and themes of religion and politics will give the adult reader something to think about.

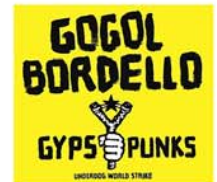

17 songs you should listen to before turning 18

“The ONE song you should listen is Tú Y Yo (You and I) by Gianmarco from the album Resucitar. Picking this song was such a hard task to do, because I love all sorts of music. However, I chose this song because it not only represents my Latin American and Peruvian heritage, but also because it showcases Gianmarco's amazing lyrical and musical ability. The song combines romanticism in a serious and playful note, the perfect fusion between a great pop song ballad with fun traditional Peruvian guitars.”

“Wanna Play by RBD. I know it's a a pop normal song, but it makes everyone dance and get in a good mood! Plus it's really good and Alfonso's voice, one of the guys when they sing is just so hot! Lol They're huge in Latin America, Spain, America and France not just because they look and sound great, but they love their fans more than anything and are really down to earth!”

“Start Wearing Purple by Gogol Bordello. The band calls their music Gypsy Punk and it's absolutely amazing. If you haven't listened to it, or anything like it for that matter, I highly recommend it. They use unusual instruments, an amazing singer and two gorgeous dancers. Trust me, it's a winning combination.”

“Let Go by Frou Frou. This song is amazing. Great rhythm, amazing lyrics, and just...perfect. It's a song that evokes a lot of emotion, but what else would be expected of a song off the Garden State soundtrack?”

“17 again by Eurythmics. Why? Because it's a beautiful and bittersweet song about time. It makes you reflect on your past ("And it feels like I'm 17 again") and I think it encourages us to live our youth to the fullest.”

“Hide and Seek by Imogen Heap. This song is one of my favourites. It has no music at all, just very pretty voices. It moves you and in my opinion it's a great song!”

“One of my favorite songs to listen to while relaxing is Your Hand in Mine by Explosions in the Sky. It's completely soothing, and I get the chills every time I hear it. I definitely think it'll let you wind down after a long day.”

The text in this block is extremely small and illegible, appearing to be a list of names or a dense block of text.

“Heal The World by Michael Jackson. I'm sure that some people would tell you that this is a very idealistic and cheesy song but I genuinely think that there's nothing wrong with hoping for a better world... and this song definitely gives you hope, and makes you want to DO something to "heal the world, make it a better place”.”

MICHAEL JACKSON

HEAL THE WORLD

17 songs you should listen to before turning 18

“Imagine by John Lennon is one of my favorite songs. Not because the Beatles (which he was a member of) are my absolute favorite band, but because it's a very meaningful song. The lyrics and melody are so simple, yet so powerful. It's about world peace...what it would be like. If everyone could just accept others beliefs & such, it could happen. Let's hope it does. You should listen to 'Imagine' at least once, if not many times, in your lifetime. It's lovely and really makes you think, especially with it's eerie tone.”

“One song that I really really love is Let It Be by the Beatles. This song is a classic and I think you can listen to it at different important stages in your life and always find a new meaning to it.”

“It's very difficult to think of just one song, im going to go with Killing me Softly by Eva Cassidy. No doubt you will know this song as it was made very famous by the fugees, however until you have heard Eva Cassidy's version then you won't have heard how that song was supposed to be sung - it is beautifully haunting and sends chills down my spine.”

“Ain't No Mountain High Enough by Marvin Gaye & Tammi Terrell. It's just a happy song which you can not listen to without singing along.”

“Somewhere Over the Rainbow by Israel Kamakawiwo Ole' or Judy Garland's version. Both are great. Judy's version has that classical sound that makes you think Wizard of Oz, and Israel's version reminds you of times that were much better.”

“Suddenly I See by KT Tunstall is pretty much just a feel-good, motivating song. It also opens up the movie "The Devil Wears Prada" and is appropriate for a driven, ambitious girl.”

“You're The Inspiration by Chicago. I know this song sounds very 80's but I love the idea of having someone in your life that inspires you, and that you will love forever. "You're The Inspiration" often makes me think about my little sister, because we didn't speak to each other for nearly a year... and now that things are better between us, I feel really grateful for having her back in my life.”

“Somewhere In Between by Lifeshouse. This song is very poetic and I always liked it but I began to truly love it when I read what Jason Wade (the singer, who also wrote it) had to say about it: "Before my girlfriend and I got together, she had broken up with this guy I'd been head-over-heels for her for years even though she was dating him. So they broke up, and I was like, "Man, if I don't make a move now, I may never get a chance." I was always friends with her but never really could get a step further. So I started taking her out to dinners and stuff. She was a little bit on the rebound, but I think she had some feelings for me. We were at that point where we weren't sure if we were dating or not, or even if she really liked me in that way. It was a very vulnerable time for me and that's when I wrote "Somewhere In Between." I poured all those feelings into the song. Then I played it for her and that was it, we were together." Isn't that the most romantic thing EVER?!”

“Unwritten by Natasha Bedingfield To me it talks about how you must live your own life, don't let others do it for you. You need to do what you think is right for you. YOU need to live life to the fullest. Emma, you began writing your "book" a few years ago, but there are many chapters to come and we can't wait to read them!”

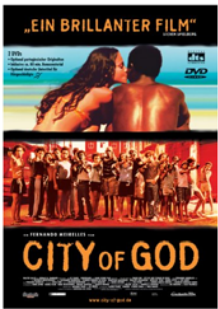

17 movies you just have to see

Dancer in the Dark

Watching this film will make you feel such powerful emotions, you won't be able to contain the tears. Bjork gives an unbelievable performance as Selma, a blind mother giving EVERYTHING for her only son. And the soundtrack is incredible too! I never get tired of watching it over and over again.

City of God

Why should you watch this movie? Simply because it's awesome! Even though I hate the image they give of Brazil, I live there and I know the South and other parts are not like that at all, but it's such a powerful film and I know you will adore it!

White Oleandar

I love this movie. It's a tragic but beautiful story of a child who travels through multiple foster homes after her mom is put in jail.

Sixteen Candles

Quintessential 80's teen movie filled with 80's hunks, crazy fashion, and of course teen angst. While I like my share of emotional heart wrenchers and tear jerkers there is something about Sixteen Candles that I really like. It always leaves me feeling kind of .. happy after I watch it and we could all use more movies like that.

17 movies you just have to see

Just like Heaven

It's about a man, David, who meets this "woman spirit", Elizabeth, who only he can see. As they together search for the truth about who Elizabeth is and how she became this spirit, their relationship deepens into love. Unfortunately, they have very little time before their prospects for a future together permanently fade away. It is funny, original and brings a fresh and worthwhile love story to life. Simply a must see.

The Greatest Game Ever Played

Recently, I've fallen in love with this movie. I'm a diehard underdog movie fan, this one's amazing. Shia Labeouf stars.

Casablanca

This 1942 movie is not only a classic, it's a masterpiece. The story is set during the Second World War, in unoccupied Africa. The main characters are played brilliantly by Humphrey Bogart and Ingrid Bergman, two of the greatest actors of the 20th century, and you cannot help being entranced by their on-screen chemistry. Casablanca is simply unforgettable. It will touch your heart more than you could ever imagine, and you'll find yourself thinking about it, feeling the need to watch it again years after you watched it for the first time. After all, "we'll always have Casablanca"...

An Inconvenient Truth

OK, it's not a movie but a documentary but I think that everyone, especially young people, should be sensibilised to the crucial issue that is global warming.

17 movies you just have to see

Edward Scissorhands

Tim Burton has always been my favorite director. He has a very unique style, which I adore. My favorite Tim Burton film is 'Edward Scissorhands'. It's about an unusual man (considering he has scissors as hands...) & his "adventures", I guess you could say. Chances are, you've seen it. But if you haven't watched it, you really should. I guarantee you'll want to watch it many times. I never get tired of it, especially since I love fairytales anyway. It's a fun and touching story, and the acting's great. I give it four stars!

American Beauty

It won 5 oscars for a reason, very rarely I see a film that I am still thinking about the next day - this was one of them.

I Am Sam

"I Am Sam" with Sean Penn, Michelle Pfeiffer, and Dakota Fanning. Not only is the movie an early indication of what Dakota Fanning would rise to become, it's a powerful and emotional story of a mentally challenged man trying to gain custody of his young daughter. Although some can honestly call it cloying and manipulative, it's still worth more than one viewing.

Back to the Future

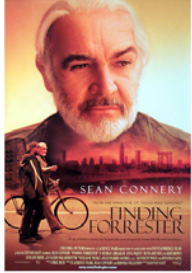

All 3 of the films are my favourite of all time! It really makes you wish you did have a DeLorean and could travel back in time. If you haven't already seen this, you won't be disappointed. You'll want to see all three films!

17 movies you just have to see

Finding Forrester

This movie is about Jamal, a 16-year-old basketball player who has a passion for reading and writing. One day, he breaks into the apartment of a reclusive author called William Forrester (Sean Connery)... and it changes his life. As William helps Jamal with his writing, a bond forms between the two men, a true inter-generational friendship going much further than an usual teacher/student relationship. To me, this story is about growing up, and coming to terms with who you are. A must-see for all the late teenagers out there, that are looking for meaningful answers to their fears, doubts and expectations.

Brokeback Mountain

Where do I start? This movie is far from being a "gay cow-boy movie", as some people have put it. It is actually about a forbidden and secretive relationship between two cowboys and their lives over the years. And it's just one of the most touching, beautiful love story ever filmed. The way these two men love each other, no matter what and despite all the issues that come with being gay in the 1950's America will undoubtedly bring you to tears. Ang Lee, did an incredible job directing actors like Heath Ledger, Jake Gyllenhaal or Michelle Williams: most of the time, they don't even need to speak to convey the deep emotions their characters are going through. And the last scene... Oh my God, that last scene is, in my humble opinion, one of the ten best scenes ever filmed in the history of film-making.

To make long things short, Brokeback Mountain is a masterpiece. If you ever were in love, you just have to see it.

Alien

Because it's a super freaky thriller that makes you jump, scream and excites you when watching it. Sci-Fi classic.

17 movies you just have to see

Hotel Rwanda

The true-life story of Paul Rusesabagina, a hotel manager who housed over a thousand Tutsis refugees during their struggle against the Hutu militia in Rwanda in 1994. What I liked the most about this movie is its documentary approach to these real, terrible events. The multi-perspective point of view allows the viewer to really "understand" why and these atrocities happened. I think that movies like "Hotel Rwanda" or "The Last King of Scotland" do have a big impact on people from occidental countries, since most of the time we're not fully aware about what's happening or has happened in Africa. Which is a shame since we swore after World War II that we wouldn't let what happened then happen again...

And last but not least .. Million Dollar Baby

Maggie Fitzgerald, a poor waitress with a dysfunctional loser family, decides to make a difference through boxing. She convinces the experienced hardened boxing trainer Frankie Dunn to coach her and be her manager. Frankie has a problematical relationship with his daughter, and practically adopts Maggie along her career, until... There's no way I'm telling you what happens next, you'll have to see for yourself. But beware, Million Dollar Baby is a very hard movie, it'll left you stunned.

17 roles we would have liked to see Emma play

1. Samantha in "Garden State", played by Natalie Portman. The main reason is because Samantha's got the best lines in the film! She's got the "100% Original Moment", the tap dancing sequence and all the quirky humor mixed with that bit of drama.

2. Tracy in "Thirteen". I would love to see Emma playing her because Tracy is like the quiet girl (well not THAT quiet but...) that turns into a mess, that film blew me away! I think to see Emma in it would prove even more what a great actress she is! And it's not only that it's a very different role from Hermione! She would be PERFECT!

3. Elizabeth in "Pride & Prejudice". It's about a strong, independent and modern woman who meets an arrogant man who she hates at first but falls in love with in the end. It's such a romantic story and I think Emma would play Elizabeth's part very well.

4. Sara in "Save The Last Dance". This movie is about a girl who wants to become a ballerina but quits dancing after her mother's death. She then moves in with her estranged Dad and is transferred to a new high school, where she meets a Black boy who introduces her to hip-hop culture and encourages her to pursue her dreams. To sum it up, the movie is about perseverance, love and tolerance. I know it sounds a bit cliché but it really is a nice movie, I swear! Anyway, I think Emma would have done a brilliant job playing Sara, not only with the dancing parts (obviously) but also with the more emotional scenes. It would have been the perfect movie for her to show us the full extent of her acting talent.

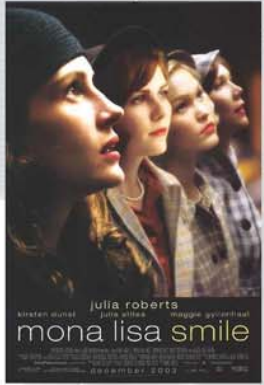

5. I'd like to see Emma play a villain. It'd give the fans a chance to see a different side of her acting, and it'd push her to become an even better actress. It seems harder than playing a good character, because you have to act evil in front of actors you're most likely friends with, while being serious. It'd be strange seeing her play one at first, as Hermione's an innocent character, but it'd also be very cool...not that I'm saying Emma should turn evil!

6. Claire Donnelly in "If These Walls Could Talk". I think it's important for Emma to establish herself in a role completely unlike the role of Hermione that she plays. Therefore, I think it would be interesting to see her play someone so desperately conflicted and doomed like Claire. The role is of a young pregnant nurse in a time when abortion was illegal and was initially played by Demi Moore.

7. Sharon/Susan in "The Parent Trap" (1961 version). Two girls with an uncanny resemblance meet at summer camp. They take an immediate dislike to each other and their rivalry soon gets them in trouble. As punishment they are forced to spend all their time together and eventually realize they are actually identical twins separated as infants when their parents divorced. They soon hatch a plot to reunite their parents. I think this would be a great role for Emma. It would challenge her with playing two different characters at the same time, and it would give her twice the screen time!

17 roles we would have liked to see Emma play.....continued

8. Elizabeth in "Just like Heaven". Elizabeth Masterson is a dedicated, workaholic doctor. One night, she gets into a tragic car crash. Now in a coma, she doesn't know she's dead and thinks nothing has happened until she meets David, a lonely architect who has just rented her old apartment... But Elizabeth is not willing to give up her place to David and starts haunting him. Elizabeth really is a touching character and I think Emma would play this high-energetic, funny yet serious woman really well.

9. Since I heard that Emma is good at singing and dancing, some kind of musical would be perfect (something like "Chicago").

10. Mia in "The Princess Diaries". Mia is really clumsy and very insecure about basically everything. But when she's told that she has to rule a country, her whole life changes and Mia stays very strong as she gets 'princess lessons' from her grandma, aka the Queen. The movie is so funny yet you see this girl trying to find herself and find out what she really wants. Emma would be perfect for such a role! She's the "British sunshine" after all, so playing a princess should be quite natural to her!

11. Lara Croft in "Tombraider". Lara Croft is a strong, intelligent, independent woman not afraid to compete in a "man's" world of recovering ancient relics. Emma has shown she is believable holding her own against the guys. She is intelligent. She is athletic and could do many of the stunts herself. And she enjoyed the scene in PoA where she punched Malfoy, so maybe she would like the chance to kick some more butt.

12. Claire in "The Breakfast Club". This 1985 movie is about five high school students who have to spend a day together in detention. They're all very different. Claire, played by the awesome Molly Ringwald, is your typical Prom Queen: popular, rich and pretty. You think you have figured her out in the first five minutes, but she turns out to be quite fragile and to have her own inner demons. I think Emma would have been great in this role. Come to think of it, I think she's actually the only young actress nowadays with enough talent, intelligence and depth to play a character as complex as Claire, should a remake be done.

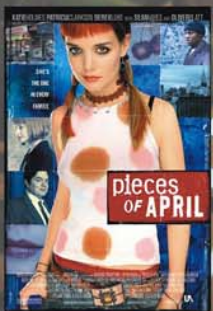

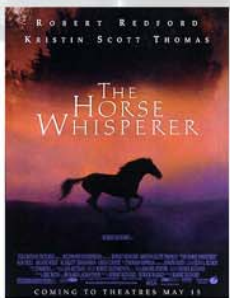

13. Grace McLean in "The Horse Whisperer". Originally played by the extremely talented Scarlett Johansson. I know Emma would now be a little bit too old for this part since Grace is 13 in the movie. But this young girl who is left traumatised after a riding accident that killed her best friend and cost her her leg is, in my humble opinion, one of the most challenging characters that a young actress could play. And I think that it would have been perfect for Emma, she's so good at showing emotions without even having to speak.

14. Betty Warren in "Mona Lisa Smile". Set in the 1950's, this movie - directed by Mike Newell - is about an Art teacher trying to show her students that they have options and that they can (must?) question their traditional societal roles. Betty Warren is one of these students. She is a strongly opinionated and clever young woman who doesn't agree with her teacher's liberal views and only wants to get married and have children... Until she realises that the life she dreamt about isn't exactly what she expected. At the beginning of the movie, Betty is the girl you love to hate, but then you realise that she's just deeply unhappy. The scene where she yells at her friend and insults her before breaking down and sobbing in her arms really made me feel her pain. I hope that Emma will play such a complex character one day (not that Hermione is not complex!).

15. Amy Stone in "The Family Stone". The movie is about a man introducing his uptight girlfriend to his family. His sister, Amy, hates the girl and keeps making fun of her... She's your typical spoiled, annoying younger sister but you can't help loving her and thinking that, with her baggy old t-shirts, she might just be the girl next door or one of your friends. It would be fun to see Emma play someone so laid-back and real for once. Amy is so different from Hermione! LOL Actually, I think Amy would make fun of Hermione if she met her...

16. April Burns in "Pieces of April". This indie movie is about April, the black sheep of the Burns family, inviting her family to come to the cramped flat she shares with her black boyfriend for Thanksgiving. Her mother is dying of breast cancer and harbors deep resentments towards her daughter, thinking that April can't do anything right. Meanwhile, April realises that her stove is not working and, wanting to show her family that she's not a failure, flies to almost every other apartment to find a neighbour that can let her cook the turkey. I know the plot sounds a bit unusual and that Emma, being a British actress, wouldn't necessarily be the first choice that would come to the mind of someone wanting to do a movie about Thanksgiving... But I think that playing this lost young girl who just wants to rebind with her family, and especially her estranged mother, would have been an interesting turn in Emma's career.

17. It's not exactly a role, but I'd really like to see Emma in a music video. Lots of actresses make appearances in music videos (Kirsten Dunst, Scarlett Johansson, Nicole Kidman and Julia Roberts did it, to name a few) and it's usually very well-done and original. Wouldn't it be cool if Emma was in the music video of one of these really good British bands that have been coming out lately?! And the good thing was that it would only take one or two days of her busy schedule...

What is your funniest travel anecdote?

Have you had your wisdom teeth removed?

Do you keep a diary?

Have you ever had a weird nickname?

When did you start dancing and playing hockey and how did it happen? Is there any particular sports achievement you are proud of?

What is one thing you really want to do in your lifetime?

If you could write and direct any film you wanted to, what would the storyline be?

If you could invent anything, would it be and what would it look like?

Have you ever or would you ever consider wearing fur as a part of your outfit?

Would you ever be tempted to do reality television?

What things or styles attract you to an article of clothing that you decide to wear?

What time period(s) do you feel inspire you the most fashion-wise?

You were born and lived in France. Where, exactly?

SEVENTEEN POEMS BY FANS

ONE

Why do we take love so lightly,
The word is said nightly,
It is used for the most stupid of reasons,
And has power to make you feel warmer than any season,
It causes the most painful of feelings,
It is the best at healing,
It is just one word,
Yet it has a power that rivals our Lord,
How does such a word gain such power,
That people shout it louder and louder,
Is it our heart that is talking,
Or is it just another thing we learn like walking,
Is it love at first sight,
Or will you know when the moment is right,
Is it something I'll see in her beautiful eyes,
Or must I find it by telling lies,
How can I ever tell which one is her,
Will I ever know for sure,
Will she ever be my beautiful dove,
That I can say I truly love.
(Written by Stephen Thomas Hanna, Lock Haven, Pennsylvania, USA.)

THREE

LONELINESS REMAINS
A lonely figure stands
Hidden under the shadow of a willow tree
His eyes glare like green fires
From underneath a moonlit veil
Looking - searching Anticipating...
He wears the night like a mantle
Obscuring him from preying eyes
Suddenly his smile falters
As a distorted reflection appears
On the wrinkles of a small pond
A gentle breeze plays through
Making fireflies dance low in the grass
Like small flames
Branches from the willow tree
Groan slightly
The reflection grows, as a faceless body
Emerges on the bank
Causing him to press back on
The rough trunk of the willow
Hours pass immobilized
Except for the rapid drumming
Of his heart
And the cold sweat
Streaming down his face
And into his slightly parted lips
Stinging his tongue
Suddenly the faceless body
Stumbles into the pond
Splashing the silence
And creating small, round waves
On the glassy surface
He dashes out from under the willow
All secrecy forgotten
And plunges his trembling hands
Into the bitter water
But only mud is scooped out
He can feel a scream
Tearing at his throat
But he must not let it out
He has lost nothing
He must move on
Alone
(Written by Yized.)

TWO

DISAPPOINTMENT ISN'T SWEET
Of all the times anything could have happened,
You picked the day where we were supposed to have fun.
The smile drained from my face when I saw you,
I felt my soul evaporate into the air and simply disappear.
The smirk on your face burned a whole through my heart,
Destroying the years of friendship in moments.
Thoughts of rage filled my head, ideas of revenge,
But when that was gone, all that was left
Was the bitter taste of disappointment.
Pain and disappointment.
People were around me, shouting and screaming.
Things became unclear as I watched myself talk to people without feeling anything.
The image of you and him stayed in my head,
As clear as crystal and the pain as fresh as a newly cut flower.

Excuses began to slip from your mouth,
Yet they didn't heal the wound you had created.
My head would tell me to accept the apology,
Yet my heart knew otherwise.
The smirk on your face burned a whole through my heart,
Destroying the years of friendship in moments.
Thoughts of rage filled my head, ideas of revenge,
But when that was gone, all that was left
Was the bitter taste of disappointment.
Pain and disappointment.

I wish I could forgive and forget,
I wish it was as easy as saying it.
But the pain caused on that night,
Is unbelievably hard to describe.

Maybe in the future things will be better,
Maybe everything will be alright.
But right now everything is a big black mess,
And I can only pray and hope that tomorrow will be better.

The smirk on your face burned a whole through my heart,
Destroying the years of friendship in moments.
Thoughts of rage filled my head, ideas of revenge,
But when that was gone, all that was left
Was the bitter taste of disappointment.
Pain and disappointment.

FOUR

Hello beautiful, it's Saturday night
Why don't we go out now, and tell the world good bye
Let's stream through the cities in our glorious flight
Yeah, let's go out and lie to the stars
If you run fast enough, you can run away from yourself,
Let's run away, hand in hand, run like we'll never run again
But, beautiful, you'll run right into everybody else, and you don't want that disaster to ever happen to them
Hey beautiful, it's late but you're looking out the window,
Dreaming and wishing 'til the sun rises for you now,
But it's a black dawn in this series of tumbling dominoes
Yet you're still reaching for something greater, somehow
Reach for the planets and land safely on the moon,
But beautiful, reach for love and watch it crush you,
Look at him with a cold heart and never assume,
But you can kiss him under those stars you lied to Hello beautiful, it's crying outside
But it's pouring in here, as you know
Why did you already make your final good byes?
You had so much farther to go

THE LONELY TRAVELLER'S GUIDE

Meet me along the Nile
Together we'll elude time
Roam the sands of Peru
How far until you'll be mine?
We'll dance in Hong-Kong Square
Your glance could set me on fire
Brilliant golden brown hair
Wound up in New Zealand's shire
Sightseeing makes you cry
I'll wipe the tears from your eye
Let your soul fly
The lonely traveller's guide
You shine just like the sun of Japan
Bright as Jerusalem's star
I see the world in your hand
Nepal's not very far
We'll take the scenic route
See the Venetian sky
Visit Paris toujours
There's no trail too hard to climb
We'll bask in Tahiti's sun
Sift through Moroccan soil
Taste Cajun spices
Spa in Grecian oil
Dance a Spanish tango
Brave the coast of Belize
Savor life's sweet mango
Learn to speak Portuguese
Sightseeing makes you cry
I'll wipe the tears from your eye
Let your soul fly
The lonely traveller's guide

THE UNREACHABLE DREAM

The mind is full of promise
The heart shows life's love theme
They paint pictures all around us
Pictures of the unreachable dream
Many dream of wealth and fame
Others dream of power
My heart only has one aim
To reach the one I desire

An arduous aim, my heart fears
But never shall I slack
because it will be worth blood and tears
Just to see her reaching back

But in a different world this girl read
A book I can't rewrite
But I will tear down the binding threads
Allowing the worlds to unite

Lately this girl is all I see
Clear pictures in the gleam
All these pictures are of me
Reaching for the unreachable dream

ANYTHING FOR LOVE

I would do anything for you,
I would do anything to fall a sleep with you,
I would do anything to have you in my arms.
Why can't you see it,
You got me crazy in love with you.
No matter what you do,
I will be right here waiting for you.
I would rather not hear the truth,
If it was to break my heart,
Because I would rather live a lie,
Than to go on through life with a broken heart.
I want to put you in the past,
But somehow I can't seem to,
But would you remember me,
Because I will never forget you.
I try to sleep,
But your image is always there,
Keeping me awake at night,
Making me wish you were here,
Lying next to me tonight.
(Written by Kieron Munns.)

NINE

THE BLUE HORIZON

I know I should be happy
I know I shouldn't cry
I shouldn't shed a tear
When you whisper au revoir in my ear
I will miss you
While I am away
Missing is a kind of painful beauty
I still am afraid
The way we feel for each other
Would fade away like morning dew
Memories dampen as the hearts lay broken
How can they stay the same
When we met the first time
You gently placed your eyes on me
It was your gorgeous smile
That gave me courage
In your arms
Lays the strength I now bear to Help me struggle with what lies ahead
From the moment we encountered as time goes by
We wonder endlessly through open skies
We chat secretly under starry nights
Together our hearts sail
Only summer rain can tell
It wasn't easy for the two of us to meet in the wide world
So I did everything to make you happy
But all had ended before it started
Words hadn't come in an easy way
In between ticks
The golden chance passed me by
Can you hear what I am saying?
Looking at the sky
I seem to see a million eyes
Which pair is yours?
Making promises is no ancient game
So let's keep it simple
Unless I am only the passer-by in your life
Time to gather with time to spare
Someday
We will find each other
Where the sky meets the sea
(Written by Evolnie.)

SEARA (Romanian Version)

Când privesc la cerul instelat,
Mă gândesc la tine,
Iar tu stai îngândurat
Și te gândești la mine.
Izvoare limpezi curg la vale,
Printre munții cei înalți,
Iar în liniștita noapte,
Din sfinte ceruri se-aud psalmi.
Spre amurgul înroșit,
Înfocate flori petalele închid.
Tu te apropii lin și cu finețe
Și-mi șoptești ceva...un vis de tinerete.
Ochii tulburați închid
Și mă gândesc la viață,
Iar alba, nebunatică și singuratică luna
Mă dismiardă-nceț și mă îndrumă.
Mă întreb cu neliniște-n suflet
Oh tu viață! Oh tu tinerete!
Lung și zgomotos aud un sunet:
Am s-ajung?Am s-ajung la bătrânețe?
Ochii verzi ușor deschid
Și mă trezesc la viață
Și realizez c-am reușit
Să redescopăr sublima seară
THE EVENING (English Version)
When I look at the starry sky
I think about you,
While you stay thoughtful
And you think about me.
Clear springs flow in the valley,
Among the high mountains,
While in the calm night
From holly skies psalms are heard.
Towards the reddened dusk,
Fiery flowers the petals are closing.
You approach with fineness
And you whisper something...a youth dream.
I close the troubled eyes
And I think about life,
And the white, frisky and solitary moon
Relaxes me slowly and guides me.
I ask myself with anxiety in my soul:
Oh life! Oh youth!
Long and nosy I hear a sound:
Will I reach? Will I reach the old age?
I open slowly my green eyes
And I wake up at life
And I realize that I succeeded
To rediscover the magnificent evening.
(Written by Raluca.)

TEN

They say time is precious,
That time is of the essence,
But what is this illusion?
What is time?

They say time flies
But how?
As time has no wing
Broken by its own descent
As you can't go back in time

So don't waste a second of life
'cause every moment
Is more precious than the last
(Written by Ryan Newstead.)

ELEVEN

WITH MINE OWN EYES

The beauty of life never ceases to amaze me
 The way things work, the way they fall into place
 Everything serves its purpose
 But nothing purposely serves
 Twists and turns come when they are least expected
 But fail to appear when they are most needed
 All these things make life a glory
 Even though to some, its what makes life hard
 But what would life be without its mysteries?
 There would be no excitement
 Life would be laid out in front of us
 I want happy, I want sad
 I want anxious, I want mad
 I wanna see people laugh out loud
 I wanna get lost in a crowd
 A crowd of emotions that overwhelm me
 But make me feel wonderful things
 Life is something we should behold
 Because it's way to short, or so I'm told
 So live life and live it good
 Live it the exact way that you should
 Like it's your last day, but there's still more
 I hear after death, there's something greater in store
 (Written by Andrew Gibson.)

THIRTEEN

THE STARRY SKY

I look up at the sky
 Seeing the iridescent stars
 Wondering why you left
 To go to a place
 Where I couldn't see you again

The star I happen to be looking at Flickers for a moment
 But in that time
 I remember how I felt
 When you left me

The sorrow and pain
 That coursed through me
 Leaving behind an empty shell
 That contains what's left of me
 And what used to be you

Now I sit silently
 Gazing up at the starry night
 Wishing that you would come back
 Seeing your face in the stars

But
 You Can't
 (Written by Anu Patel.)

TWELVE

ASYMMETRIC SMILE

How sad it is that the world is preoccupied
 With perfunctory proportion;
 The "perfect" qualities of lines and shapes
 Precisely maintained to be the nonpareil of beauty.
 They fail to see the true soul of beauty:
 That the spark of life- the beauty and essence
 Of not just one, but a thousand whole people,
 Can be encompassed in just one asymmetrical smile.
 A quirk of mirth
 A sliver of joy
 A quiver of forlornness
 A curl of impishness
 A twist of hesitation
 A crook of wit
 A twine of distraction
 A tug of befuddlement
 How precious it is for us to be allowed to See the wonders of life and the world
 In one beautiful asymmetrical smile.
 The soul reflects what it finds best,
 And we cannot help but to give a wide whole smile
 At the look or thought of your asymmetric one.
 (Written by Eric Bowling.)

EL AMANTE OLVIDADO (Spanish Version)

En tu alma escribo en soledad
 como si de una rosa se tratara,
 a la que se le arrancan las espinas encontrando la nivea realidad...
 "Cuando la noche te llame
 con su perfume de muerte
 sabré que mi vida es ida,
 que mi alma la noche inerte".
 ¡Oh, muerte poderosa!
 sé esta noche, en la que mi amor cobras
 que mi camino sin salida
 acaba cuando empiezan las sombras.
 Unas sombras que me siguen
 que me encierran en la nada, que en mi mente se persiguen
 diciéndote a cada momento, amada:
 "Vida de un día negro
 y cautivo;
 vida ausente,
 en el alma escribo".

THE FORGOTTEN LOVER (English Version)

In your soul I write in loneliness
 as if about a rose she was treating herself, to that her the thorns are extracted finding the snowy reality ...
 "When the night she calls you
 with her perfume of death
 I will know that my life is a going,
 that my soul the inert night".
 Oh, powerful death!
 Be this night, in which my love you charge
 that my way without exit finishes when they begin the shades.
 A few shades that me follow
 that they me enclose in nothing, which in my mind is chased saying to you to every moment, loved:
 "Life of a black
 and captive day;
 Absent life,
 in the soul I write".

 in Puerto Sagunto (Valencia), Spain.)

FIFTEEN

WHAT A DREAM

In life, our paths to never join and meet;
 In one, a path of dreams to always be;
 The better, one forever lost to me,
 Apart from me, with heart as my defeat,
 For she about this path to never find;
 Upon her only through a tale of mind:

There be her, my dream,
 Beauty there by river stream,
 As it in a steady, slow,
 Path of obscurity does flow,
 Toward a mountain afar
 That attention does mar;
 As does Goddess from above
 --Who I cannot help love--
 With figure that serves to stun,
 As the golden rays of sun,
 Wrap about capturing her in glow,
 As she stares at clear river flow;
 Attired in best of azure gowns,
 Around her lucent aura bounds,
 Long train behind undulates in air,
 And also in soft stir, her hair,
 As she roams in solitude
 --To my eternal gratitude--

In remote desolate treasure
 Mere words cannot measure.
 Beauty there by river stream,
 Emblems to me, I so deem:
 A hope to lastly meet,
 Without accomplishing a feat,
 For I solely do espy
 --With profound a sigh--
 From the perfect disguise
 Of a boulder my size,
 She in her grandeur,
 For such a scene does lure,
 Whilst she in leisurely pace
 With alluring eyes in gaze,
 Glances at paradise around,
 Where ample tranquil is found,
 And most to be heard is melody
 Birds tune in non-melancholy:
 Soaring in flair above us nigh,
 In the lightly clouded sky,
 In inclines and swift declinals,
 Pair of Orioles and Cardinals.

Beauty there where river streams,
 Gazes upon mountain seams;
 Glancing from top to base,
 Crowns shrouded in silver haze,
 Where blanket of melancholy
 --I too stare in folly--
 In great presence transpires
 Over terrain in darkness mires;
 Visible mossy mountain terrain,
 Lends view not in vain,
 For in its soil there be life,
 Throughout about in rife:
 Fresh, mildly soaked sod,
 With its flora, in wind nod,
 While Aspens shed shadows
 Upon rosy abundant mallowes,
 Amidst sun illuminating 'round
 Lively mountain ground,

WHAT A DREAM Continued...

Provides for quite a spectacle,
 From the mind never to trickle.
 Beauty there by river stream,
 Accompanies flora thriving in ream,
 Growing about flood meadow,
 As sun basks in light marrow:
 Close to river bank reside
 --Where I also abide--
 Dandelion, Iris, and Sandwort
 In various kind and color assort,
 And coincide to display scenery
 Of beauty seen only in rarity,
 While swiftly stirring in wind's trend
 As umbrae follow in bend;
 Nearby Fir, Aspen, and Pine
 --Thrice size of mine--
 Overshadow rest of field,
 And in strong stature, wield
 To serve as a shroud,
 To inner paradise endowed,
 Where she now to me closer
 And also my curser.

Then, she in sudden, stared at my sad eyes,
 Surprising I in my alleged disguise,
 And soon began in angel's voice, convey
 From mind about us with a lovely say:

Upon me,
 In heaven, how thou so free?
 Is in thy mind, ever
 me?

But, not free,
 For thee dost gaze upon me
 With fond, one to never free;

But, I now,
 Seeing thee, thy self must know
 I too want forever
 now;

But, do know,
 This paradise I in now:

Not I to forever
 know;

Cherish me,
 And I to thee, for both free
 In lost heaven we now
 know.

Now, close to each for moments locked in sight,
 Surrounding, a transparent haze of white,
 Then, I inclined in steady movement near,
 And I in lower voice to her in ear:
 Thou art so special on this April day,
 As thee were born this day not long ago
 With beauty that to dark can light bestow,
 For thee a precious pair on any May:
 It be the pass of spring, or come of snow,
 The fall in rain, or rise in summer ray,
 Thou never less, a sun is for a day,
 As thee in ample beauty ever glow.
 So brilliant thee to be, upon this earth
 In mind and soul that shine so bright across,
 And woe it would if such a light of worth
 Be gone, for darkness forth upon that loss
 In thee, to spiral moon in lost abyss:
 To ever float in bleak on life amiss.
 But now, a time has come with sad dilemma,
 For I to leave with: Happy Birthday Emma.

SIXTEEN

(Russian Version)

Ты говоришь, что жизнь опасна
 Ты повторяешь каждый раз!
 Но каждый шаг твой и поступок
 Лишь всех рыцарских прикрас!
 Ты вечно ставишь мне запреты
 Не объясняя, почему
 И после этих разговоров
 Я ночью спать уж не могу!
 Ты должен быть оптимистичным
 Поверь мне, это хорошо
 Но я сейчас пока не знаю
 Что можешь дать ты мне ещё.
 Я не могу в тебя влюбиться
 Не обещаю тебе мою жизнь
 Меня ты, милый, не добьёшься
 Ведь мы не в школе - так держись!
 Я не могу простить всё это
 Я не могу простить любовь,
 И каждый раз тебя увидя
 Хочу я скрыться вновь и вновь.
 Такая жизнь мне не по силам
 Нет смысла в ней держать тебя
 Я не смогла бы объясниться
 Нет слов, уйди же от меня!
 (English Version)

You say that life is danger
 You say this every time
 But ever your decision
 Is only quite right fine!
 You tell me prohibitions
 You couldn't tell me why
 For ever your prediction
 I can't sleep and I cry.
 You must be optimistic
 It's perfect please believe
 But nowadays I don't know
 How much you can me give.
 But I still can't to love you
 Don't promise me my life
 I can't change my opinion
 It's not school mark by five!
 I really can't forgive how
 You give to me your love
 But every time I see you
 I must to change my stuff!
 It's very boring, silly!
 I can't explain you why
 But every time I see you
 I can cry only...cry.

SEVENTEEN

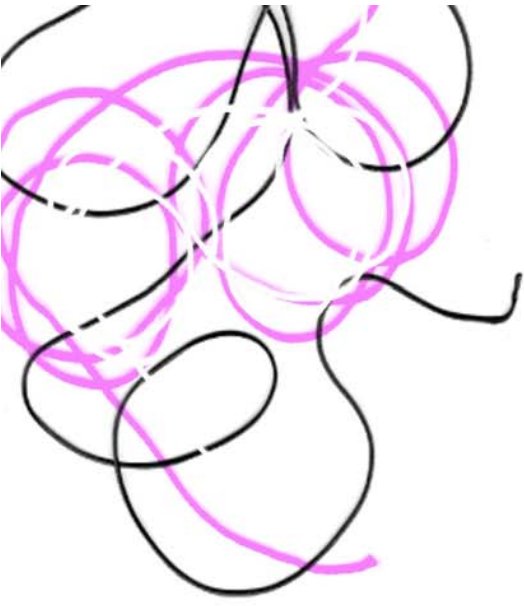

(Originally Written In Taiwanese.)

Out on the hill-side yonder,
 The wind to rest is laid;
 Under the drooping branches,
 There sits the little maid,

She sits among the wild thyme,
 She sits in the fragrant air;
 The blue butterflies hum around her,
 Bright wings flash everywhere.

And through the silent woodland,
 She peers with watchful eye;
 While on her hazel ringlets,
 Sparkles the glad sunshine.

And far, far off the cuckoo,
 Laughs out his song.
 In forest,
 She is Emma.
