You're really my absolute idol. I know you since I am seven years old so it feels like you've been a part of my life. I have an enormous esteem and respect for you who has remained simple and natural despite your huge success. You kept your studies at Brown whereas students pursued you twenty-four hours a day and they constantly put on the internet the place where you were. Acts which have in any way tarnished your kindness with your fans. I particularly admire your constant fight and actions for feminism, for refugee law and all of your humanitarian trips. I find amazing your authenticity, your sincerity and the way that you defend your convictions and the values in which you believe. Without forgetting that you are a great actress who can spend many hours to watching reality shows to put yourself into the shoes of your character who is the exact opposite of your personality. I am so proud when I realize that I saw this little girl of ten years old grow and flourish to become the wonderful woman that you are today. You are veritably a model and an inspiration for me. I would be extremely lucky if I could be a little bit like you.

I really love you Emma 😊 I was calling to say the best anyway birthday and stay always the way you are. I wish you all the happiness of the world and let your hopes and dreams come true 😊

Emma's 26th Birthday

Dear Emma.

26 years ago at this day a great person was born. Not just an actress but a great innovator, an example of powerful woman.

I am the same age you are and I admire you for more than 14 years and you cannot imagine how proud I feel for you.

You inspire thousands of speechless women to speak, hundreds of thousands of caring men to act and millions of people to believe.

I wish you to reach the goals you have in front of you and not to forget that you are not alone in this fight.

I wish you to stay such an humble and lovely person that spreads light on the people around.

I wish you to love and to be loved.

Truly yours

Hrach

P.S. I hope you will like to portrait I made inspired by the upcoming Colonia movie.

There are things in life you wish you had,
The beautiful fragrances of life that keeps you happy,
Rough roads that mend at their very thought,
Inspiration being inspired from this moving canvas,
That I would gladly call my Lisa,
A hero that shows you the light, in the darkness,
The tunnel we are enveloped in becomes our playground.
Just one person can change my road of thought,
Emma, its you.

Inspiration drawn from your every word,
Your actions, the epitome of selfless courage,
A white knight in this dark scary night,
Where one false move could be my last,
Your smile, your love, those eyes.
Repetitions worth every repeat, a broken record I would proudly keep.
You keep me walking, you keep me up.
Emma, it's you.

I am but a dot, an unknown quantity faced with exigencies,
Thousands of miles away, you may never hear of me, for now,
All I have of you is a picture and a dream,
A dream to pick me up when I am down,
I will meet you and leave my relinquishing mark,
For me there is just one inspiration and
Emma, its you

I will always be a wallflower, thirsting for Some magic,
Your knowledge, you spirit a light to which I turn over all my horcruxes.
Your light leads me away from all this regression.
My noah from this flood of monotony.
You are away from my reach but I shall endeavour,
A challenge I take on, my goal just to meet you,
Cause I have no other goal but one,
And Emma, its you.

Aubrey, India

Dear Miss Watson,

Hello and how have you been? I just wanted to wish you a very happy birthday! I am one of the millions who watched the speech you gave back in September 2014, about gender equality. Like so many others, for me, your speech was significant, and I'm still thinking about it.

So, I wrote a story for CNN, where my father works. It regarded a situation I had with my neighborhood friends, where I witnessed gender stereotyping toward one of my younger peers. This is the story: With my discovering of gender stereotyping in my own neighborhood, I stepped up for a younger friend of mine, after he had been insulted by my older friends one day. They were telling him to stop acting "like a girl," for he had been crying from a fight.

Generally speaking, my guy friends don't always like to play games with my sister in the same way they do with each other, because she's a girl. My sister doesn't always want to play with the boys as a result, and when she does, she often wants to act tough. Another female friend of mine claims that she doesn't cry when she gets upset. It seems to me that she only says that to make the rest of us think that she does not cry "like a girl." I fear that she feels the need to be tough and "manly" because of the company that she is around.

Of course, I don't want to be mean to my guy friends. It just bothers me when they sometimes treat some of the girls in our neighborhood differently, including my sister. I'm not sure how to talk to my guy friends about how I feel, that is without accidentally making them feel bad. I will talk to them though, because I want all my friends to feel that they can be whoever they want to be, as I recall you saying in your He-For-She question and answer session in March 2015.

In an effort to better understand the fight for gender equality, I am a member of your book club, "Our Shared Shelf." I am having a wonderful time reading your selection of books and learning about the many different perspectives of feminism! I think that the more I learn about feminism, the more I can express to my friends how I feel about the need to put an end to gender stereotyping.

I just want to thank you for changing my life in a way I never thought possible, by wishing you the happiest birthday there can be!

Warmly,
Jayce

Happy Birthday

My Dearest Emma!!!

I wish you're out there reading this stupid letter of a stupid boy who obsessed with you for more than 15 years and counting. He doesn't even bother if this letter reaches you or not. All it matters that his addiction already been paid off by the great people who work hard on behalf of your birthday project. I didn't really expect that I had a mere chance to be a part of this glorious event. However, it boosted my feelings billions time more about you. It's funny that I can't even find the perfect word to express how grateful I'm to them. It seemed extraordinary, distinctive, unique, and recognized of a childish love.

Last year, when the project published I was checking the pages thoroughly. Each pages made my heartbeat faster and faster. It felt that I was going to have a heart-attack. Suddenly the pages were all over and yeah I found it at the very end. I couldn't believe that I made myself a place on that project. I couldn't even smile I shocked, froze as death. And that very moment I felt something inside of all over my body that was unique something I never ever felt before. A perfect joy, a true happiness, some kind of pure thing people only can find once in a lifetime. I hold my phone and called every closest person I have. One by one I informed them. It was like I was shouting all over the phone. Seems like the quote is true that, "Every Cloud has a silver lining".

So here I am writing my second letter to this most beautiful girl the world will ever see. To me you are the definition of endless beauty. There's something with your look so strong that can make millions of people fall for you like the movie "The Perfume". It's been 15 years and there hasn't a day goes by without thinking of you, that very first time when I saw you on screen, that very feelings still hunt me. It's still fresh, bright, sprinkling, splashing, electrifying, and sparking. No matter how much I try I can't comprehend to anyone how I truly feel which is really doesn't matter. It's my feeling and mine only. I don't want to share it a little bit.

I watched you grow. I've lived with you in many ways. Thinking of you makes me smile. I can't even say how thankful I am to your greatest parents who bring upon you in this world. They didn't bring any ordinary child but a light, a mhysa (Mother) to this dark era. You were meant to fight for feminism. No one could raise the voice the way you did and the result was outstanding. He For She campaign changes the way of thinking of men all over the world. You have the light in you which you already aware of. It's great to know that you are using it into right direction with right people.

While recapitulating things, all I can say that I'll meet you one day for sure. Even if it takes my last day on earth, I therefore shall meet you in person. So far till now, its' 11004 files including pictures, videos, documents, lot of stuffs and some beautiful memories I've preserved both on my computer and my human heart. Live happily, be strong, be secure, avoid critics, you're the most valuable asset on earth. A lot of girls, women depend on your actions, moves, and decisions about how you're going to represent them to this world. So step carefully, think twice and one last request.

P.S: Plz live 1000 years more <3 <3 <3

HAPPY 26TH BIRTHDAY PRINCESS EMMA WATSON

Dear Emma,

every year I wait for the day I can write you a letter and give you my respect.

But when the day is there I don't know how I should begin.

Emma, I wish you a happy happy happy birthday, health, luck for you and your family and that all your wishes come true.

I come from Germany and I am sorry for my English.

Now I am 19 years old and study childhood studies because I always wanted to help children that they can have the chance to be children and to have a family. The time passes and I grow older, but you should know that nothing has changed, you are still my biggest idol, you are a protector and a best friend, but more. I hope you can understand what I mean.

I want to say that I am thankful that you are always there. There to draw a smile on my face and there to tell you everything. Every year you make me proud, proud that I had the chance to grow up with you and watch how you become such an incredible woman. I can understand that you can think about the fact that I don't know you and that I never see you and how you can be so important to me. I am sorry Emma because I can't explain it and I know that I am not a part of your life. But the one thing I am sure about, is, that you are a part of mine. You are a part of my heart for so many years now that it is naturally for me to look at the fanpage every week, that it is naturally that I am happy when I can see a new interview or a new article, naturally that I tell and show my family everything what makes me proud of you. It is naturally that you are always there. It is difficult to explain you every year in one letter how you make me feel. You explain that feeling with the words of Maya Angelou on the international women's day this year. And all I can say is that you make me feel every time I hear you in an interview, every time you speak about equality and about things that are important in your life, every time I see you playing different roles and every time I see a picture or read your name.

Because the letter would be too long I want that you know this last thing:

Emma you are perfect as the UN Woman Goodwill Ambassador. The HeForShe campaign is incredible and I think that you make your job wonderful. I want that you know that I care about these problems too and hope that I can help some day in the way you do it, to can change different lives in these world for example to give children the chance to grow up in a family who loves them or to give girls their childhood back and let them be children and not wives and mothers with 13.

Emma you become an incredible woman and I thank you that you be who you are.

Thank you that you are my idol and I can be your fan.

Thank you that you be there for me.

Have a wonderful day with your family and hopefully time without the craziness of the public.

PS: I hope you can see and like my video.

EMMA!!! your speech changed my perspective on a very difficult moment of my life and since there, I knew I was in the right place
at the right time.
Now I realize that all my life I've been a feminist. In the past I have suffered for expressing my feelings and show vulnerable and I felt like a faker but you showed us how wrong I was, you showed us your humanity, your wisdom, you gave us the example. I'm very grateful for everything you do
and I will never stop supporting you and this movement. I work hard everyday
to be a more true
and complete version of myself. Thank you very much. I wish you my best, and I hope you have a great day today and everyday.

Happy Birthday Emma! Hard to believe you are already 26. I myself am 29, which means I'll be 30 next year(at least you have a few more years in your twenties left).

I want to wish your luck on your year off of acting to focus on feminism. You've been busy for the past 15-16 years and have upcoming projects anyway, so I think you've earned it personally. :). I hope that after the break you will write/talk about what you've learned this year. I was surprised when you formed Our Shared Shelf earlier this year, as it's weird to see you a part of and actually reading an online discussion forum. Of course it's a forum about feminism and not a fan forum about you, so that probably helps. I think it's great and very informative.

Anyway I hope you have a happy birthday and that you keep fighting the good fight.

Love, Kevin

You are such a beautiful and talented actress, I can't wait to see Colonia, The Circle and the Beauty & the Beast.

I hope you will have a wonderful day and don't forget if you have a bad time that there are a lot of people who truly support you and who will be with you forever. Even if you don't know us, we are your team and we will stand with you in good and bad time until the end.

She is true definition of endless beauty. I honor that great mother who brings upon this extraordinary child. Happy birthday love. Live 1000 years more.

Safayat, Bangladesh

Always a pleasure watching you on-screen. I wouldn't want to state the obvious about how you've grown perfectly to be a leading actress and social activist from a child prodigy. However, I would like to say that the feel you bring about on screen, your elegant and natural style is exquisite. The reason you're admired by people all over the world cannot be paraphrased in a sentence.

Happy 26th birthday! Have a wonderful time! Continue to be the enthusiastic one and keep Rocking! Cheers!

Best wishes

Emma, you have been a hero of mine for the last thirteen years. I hope this birthday is a particularly special one for you. I thought I would look up what Angel corresponds with your birthday, given how angelic you have always seemed to me. I found that because you were born on a Sunday, yours would be Michael the Archangel. In Christian tradition, one of the major reasons Lucifer rebelled against Heaven was because he and the angels were shown a vision of Mary as their future Queen. "And a great sign appeared in heaven: A woman clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet, and on her head a crown of twelve stars". Lucifer, Prince of Heaven, could not stand the idea of bowing his head to a servant girl so he rebelled against Heaven and in doing so, became the first anti-feminist. Michael was one of the lower angels at the time. He fought against Lucifer whilst proclaiming himself allied with his God and his Future Queen, essentially becoming the first feminist created as he stood for a woman's rights, even before she existed. A warrior fighting for his Lady's honor until she could crush her adversary's skull with her own heel. I find it very fitting this angel is a sacred patron for your birthday, given how much you seek equality between men and women.

I read a passage from GK Chesterton in his essay 'On Love' from his collection, All I Survey, and it always stuck out to me as a grand commentary condemning the modern ideal that a woman can only be a romantic ideal or object and not a power in her own regards. This excerpt truly instills a belief in me of the strength of women that so many take for granted. I hope it stirs some thought in you and that you like it, but I do not know your opinion of Byron, whether you admire him or not. My father does not appreciate him as my father says a woman is far more than a romantic ideal.

"He(the modern critic) therefore supposes that all women, in all ages, would have accepted the prehistoric Byronic commandment: that the Byronic sort of romantic passion was the sole concern of their lives. Yet it is certain that women have had a great many other concerns, and have been attached to a great many other convictions. They have been priestesses, prophetesses, empresses, queens, abbesses, mothers, great housewives, great letter-writers, lunatics founding sects, blue-stockings keeping salons, and all sorts of things. If you had said to Deborah the mother in Israel, or Hypatia the Platonist of Alexandria, or Catherine of Sienna, or Joan of Arc, or Isabella of Spain, or Maria Theresa of Austria, or even to Hannah More or Joanna Southcott, that Byronic Love was 'woman's whole existence', they would have flown into a towering passion. They would have asked in various ways whether there was no such thing as honor, no such thing as duty, no such thing as glory, no such thing as great studies or great enterprises, no such thing as normal functions and necessary labours; incidentally we may add, no such thing as babies. They differed a great deal in their type of vocation and even their type of virtue, but they all had some theory of virtue that went a little farther than that."

I hope you have a very blessed and passionate birthday deserving of your grand personage. I would like to close my message with lyrics from a favorite song of mine, Stardust, from the band Delain (whose lead singer holds an Bachelors in Art and a Masters Degree in Gender Studies)

Dreamscape in a blanket silver grey Homesick for a memory washed away
All light in hollow eyes is stardust, stardust

Once you learned there is no return to lies Heaven cried as we left the earth to die
Homesick for a memory in silent sleep eternally

Bring me to life
Bring me the starlight
Bring me the sun and moon
Release this star tonight

Happy Birthday, signed Stuart Harrison,

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Dear Emma

Happy Birthday Emma! Hope you have a great day <3

I respect you so much because you are gentle, brave, intelligent, beautiful and hardworking. I want to support what you decide to do. You are the amazing woman!

Now I'm reading a lot of books like you and learning towards my dream. I do my best as you do :)

Love you! I want to see you someday ♡

From Sayo

Dear Emma!

You brilliant, brilliant human being!

You share something with every Hogwarts House - you're as brave as Gryffindor, as ambitious as Slytherin, as witty Ravenclaw and as hard-working as Hufflepuff.

Not only do you share working hard, trying to change the world for better and your willingness to learn with your fictional counterpart, you have a lot in common with your other characters:

Such as the name Fossil will always be connected to Pauline, your surname Watson will always be connected to you.

Both you and Nikki show the world that we cannot live any longer in the world we live in, in the way we do. You started the HeforShe campaign and the fictional character of Nikki committed burglary (based on real events) and showed the world what bored people can do to the world. Nikki is a warning signal for the society to look after its people. You made lots of people realise that we live in a world, which, of course has achieved much, but still has to achieve a lot.

Lena is very brave and enters the Colonia Dignidad in order to save Daniel. I think maybe you would use different means in order to save your loved one, but hell freezes over if you would not do save your loved one when you have the same deep, meaningful relationship Lena shares with Daniel.

And, finally you share an interest in sports with Sam from The Perks of Being a Wallflower (the German title is really bad btw).

Since 2007, when I started Philosopher's stone, until now, nearly ten years later, you were there for me. Whenever I was sad, or angry, or I felt left alone, I could listen to an interview with you, or watch one of the movies in which you played. The characters you played showed me how to keep strong, to become strong. And especially Hermione and Sam showed me, that, first, girls can be warrior princesses, and second, that we're all welcome on the island of misfit toys. They showed me that knowledge and bravery is everything.

I can't thank you enough, and I really would like to send a thank-you letter to you. Sadly, I don't have an address to send it to you.

I want to wish you all the best for your birthday. You really deserve it. You are a wonderful human being, and I hope you have a wonderful time with your loved ones and dear ones.

I can't say thank you enough, and all the best I wish you for your birthday is not enough. Because whenever something is measured, people refer to somebody as queen, king, princess or prince of something. But whenever I tell somebody how much you mean to me, and how I see your talents, and you as an actress, the work you do for the improvement of everybody's life, I refer to you as "empress".

Your loyal fan, Valerie

Dear Emma

I wish you a very happy 26th birthday! I hope you can enjoy your special day with all your loved ones!

Love,
Sheila from Switzerland
